"The Final Settlement" Tomorrow Evening at The Colonial.

In "The Final Settlement," the attraction at The Colonial on September 15, theatre goers will see a new social melo-drama which differs greatly from the ordinary run of the realistic stage drama. The play is by one of America's most successful dramatists.

The play deals with issues particularly vital to the new financial phase of American life. A bright young workingman makes a fortune and becomes a capitalist. His wife clings to her domestic ideals, old fashioned and wholesome. The husband is wrathful at her reluctance to engage in social splendor. He divorces her, weds a brilliant actress and seeks to make his way into the circles of the best society. In the end the pace is too much for him; he finally loses his fortune and position and becomes again the workingman and social nobody. How his first wife is still faithful to him and how the problem of life is worked out to a strating climax are strong points in the play.

There is pathos in the play, also bright comedy and intense humanity.

"A Message From the Skies."
In these days of hustle and ambition, the author of this great play has succeeded in keeping abreast with the times. The story of "A Message From the Skies" is a purely fictitious one, and deals with the much talked of war between the United States and Japan. The play opens with a diplomatic reception at the Japanese consulate at Washington, the time being the night before war is declared. The Jap ambassador has given this reception that he may, with the assistance of a traitor, gain possession of certain Pacific coast defences. The traitor is an officer in the United States service who is willing to sell his honor and his country for the sake of being revenged on Captain Harry Randall, who is his rival in love.

For a while it looks as though he would succeed in his treachery, but after some strong dramatic situations, the tables are turned and the villain is foiled through his own carelessness.

Boys and Girls Have an Exhibition of Garden Products.

Last Saturday evening the boys and girls who have been members of Mrs. John Chase's garden class held a fair at Grange hall, the exhibits being all from their personally conducted gardens. They had a very creditable showing of garden produce, so good in fact that T. N. Vall, who visited the fair after the prizes were announced said that every boy and girl was entitled to a prize and gave them cash prizes. The girls beat the boys in the contest and the prizes to the older girls, from 12 to 17 years old, were awarded to Esther Ball and Vivian Hodge. In the younger class of girls Hazel Willey and Mildred Woods, honorable mention, Charles Willey, Raymond Grady and Granville Gilman.

The executive committee has appointed all the superintendents of the different departments of the state fair, to take place at White River Junction, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 20, 21, 22 and 23. They are as follows: Horse, E. A. Smalley, Morrisville; cattle, H. L. Hatch, South Strafford; sheep, W. H. Harrington, South Pomfret; swine, A. G. Holt, Taftsville; dairy products and maple sugar, M. A. Adams, Derby; poultry, R. S. Currier, Barre; horticultural, E. L. Wright, Middlebury; machinery, Chester Sargent, White River Junction; domestic manufactures, S. E. Leonard, North Pomfret. Spencer Borden of Fall River, Mass., will exhibit four full-blooded Arabian stallions and four full-blooded Arabian mares. These Arabian horses are the finest of their kind outside the desert.

Men Who Are Anxious to Pray.

The Rev. P. A. Smith, the Methodist pastor of Groton, announces himself as a "receptive" candidate for chaplain of the next house of representatives, where, he says, he nominates the Rev. John Wesley Miller, the representative-elect from Bethel, for the position. Mr. Miller could easily do double duty and if he drew pay for both offices, $8 a day would make a tidy addition to the exchequer of this popular Methodist parson, who was a prominent member of the house in 1908.

Fighting Pastor Resigns.

Following a complaint against the Rev. L. F. Portney of Plainfield for a breach of the peace, lodged by State's Attorney Gates, the Universalist church of Plainfield has also lodged a complaint against him, and it is said the fighting parson has withdrawn from fellowship. The rumor that he has done so is confirmed by Prof. O. K. Hollister of Barre, president of the State Universalist society.

Stolen Team Recovered.

Bailey & Foster of Montpelier have recovered the horse, buggy and harness, valued at $300, that was stolen from their lively stable six weeks ago by a slick young man who left a worn out horse and buggy and hired the rig for two days. The horse left at Montpelier by the thief has since died. On learning that a man supposed to be the one that had stolen his team was under arrest at New Haven, Conn., Mr. Bailey went there this week and learned from the self-confessed thief where in New Hampshire he could find his rig. Mr. Bailey went there and claimed it and is now driving it home. The man who stole it is charged in New Haven with a similar offense and will be tried there.

Memorial of General Thomas.

The survivors of the 8th Vermont regiment are making arrangements to hold a reunion about October 20, at the birthplace in Bethel of Gen. Stephen Thomas of Montpelier, who during his lifetime was perpetual commander and president of that regimental association. Many of the survivors reside in Montpelier and they are planning to place a memorial marker at the spot where General Thomas was born. The reunion may be held October 19, which will be the 46th anniversary of the battle of Cedar Creek, in which the 8th Vermont was conspicuous. Capt. B. F. Bowman of Randolph is interested in the event and is in correspondence with Montpelier members of that regiment as to details of the reunion.

NEWARK.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Joyce of West Stewartstown, N. H., visited her brother, Oscar Buzzell, and other relatives in Newark and Burke recently.

A Good Position.

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "wireless" or railway telegraphy. Since the eight-hour law became effective, and since the wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph institute operates six official institutes in America under supervision of railway and wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, O., or Philadelphia, Pa.

NEWBURY.

Death of John Merrill Goodwin, the Last Survivor of the Mexican War.

John Merrill Goodwin, the last survivor of the Mexican war in Vermont, died about one o'clock in the morning of Sept. 9th, in his 91st year. He was born in a house still standing on the Whitelaw farm in Ryegate, July 17, 1820, the oldest son of Wells and Lydia (Heath) Goodwin. While working in Manchester, N. H., in April 1847, he enlisted in Co. C, 9th U. S. Infantry, in the brigade commanded by Gen. (afterward President) Pierce. The brigade reached Vera Cruz in June and marched to Puebla to re-inforce the army under Gen. Scott. He was in the battle of Conheras, Chereburco, and Malino del Rey. In the storming of Chereburco he was the first man over the castle wall, and was promoted for bravery, and again at the battle last mentioned, when he became orderly Sergeant, and was aiding Captain on the return from Vera Cruz to Newport, R. I., where he was discharged, Aug. 23, 1848. At the breaking out of the Civil war he was living in Boston, and was offered a commission by Gov. Andrew, who knew him well. He was rejected by the examining surgeon as too frail for the army but outlived the surgeon, and all the officers of that regiment except two.

Mr. Goodwin married in 1849, Elizabeth Clark of Newbury, and has spent the rest of his life in Newbury and adjoining towns where he has been a farmer, owning several farms in succession. Mrs. Goodwin died in 1898 and he has made his home with his only son part of the time. His granddaughter, now Mrs. Charles H. Green lived with him and cared for her grandfather during several years, and it was at her home, after some weeks of failing body and mind that he died.

Mr. Goodwin, who was an active energetic man, of very social tastes and friendly temperament, retained his faculties nearly to the end of his life and could recall with distinctness and readiness what he had done and observed for 85 years. He remembered well William Nelson and Gen. Whitelaw, who were among the first ready of Ryegate to fight in 1847, and his two lives spanning a period of almost 170 years.

Mr. Goodwin's death removes a marked figure in Newbury. His clear and ready memory and personal activity were a wonder. When in his 90th year, after doing a fair day's work, he thought nothing of taking a stroll of 10 miles or so, at a pace few young men could keep up with. Beside his only son, John, and the granddaughter mentioned, he is survived by three sisters, all who remain of his father's family of 12 children. It is singular that both father and son should be the last survivors in Vermont of respectively the war of 1812 and the Mexican war. The father, Wells Goodwin, was a private in the 11th U. S. Infantry, and was wounded at the battle of Lundy's Lane July 25, 1812. He died in Newbury, Dec. 11, 1894, at the great age of 100 years, one month and two days.

STATISTICS IN BANKS.

Great Increase in Deposits During the Past Year.

In his biennial report Frank C. Williams, bank commissioner, says there are 21 mutual savings banks and 21 savings banks and trust companies with savings deposits and two trust companies without savings deposits doing business in the state. The total deposits of the banks at the close of business June 30, 1910, were $68,894,227.96, being an increase for the year of $4,419,225, which is the largest increase in any year save one in the history of the state. This increase is divided as follows: The 21 mutual savings banks have increased deposits, $2,481,235.37 and the 27 savings banks and trust companies which have savings deposits have increased $1,937,969.63.

The number of depositors has increased 3,957 over which 2,094 are residents of Vermont and 1,863 are non-resident. Deposits by non-residents have increased $591,845.05, being now $10,085,538.89.

Dividends paid depositors have increased $199,615.58, while the average amount to each depositor has decreased $39.59, being now only $32.79.

Dividends paid stockholders of trust companies increased $53,500 while the rate of surplus and profits to deposits shows a decrease.

Sixteen of the mutual savings banks paid depositors four per cent; four 3 1-2 per cent; one 3 per cent and of the 27 savings banks and trust companies which have savings deposits, 22 paid 4 per cent; two 3 3-4 per cent; two 3 1-2 per cent and one 3 1-2 per cent on deposits for the year.

Mrs. Helena Jane Owens.
On Wednesday, the 24th of August, after a brief illness, there entered into rest one who will be greatly missed by those who knew her well, Mrs. Helena Jane (Williams) Owen, of St. Johnsbury. She was born some 53 years ago in Kingssey, Quebec. She was very quiet and retiring by nature, and hence her circle of acquaintances was smaller and her excellent qualities less widely known than might otherwise have been the case. She was a good neighbor, speaking kindly if at all of every one, helpful as she had opportunity, and highly appreciative of any kindnesses shown her by others.

Her many sorrows and trials had apparently sweetened and refined her character rather than embittering it as is the case with too many. She had been a widow for some 20 years. The older of her two daughters died before the family came to St. Johnsbury. This was another great blow, for the young lady had reached an age where she was a companion, helper, and a great comfort to her mother. Lillian, the second daughter, followed her sister about five years ago. But from all these afflictions Mrs. Owen rallied, and bore her trials with Christian fortitude, showing a disposition to make the best of everything.

She had been about her work much as usual on Monday, Aug. 22, though acknowledging much fatigue and a severe headache; toward night she suffered a paralytic shock; everything possible was done for her as soon as her condition was known but she did not regain consciousness, and passed away as noted above.

Brief services were conducted at her cottage home in the rear of 25 Summer street, on Thursday, Rev. F. W. Lewis, officiating. The mortal remains were then taken to Melbourne, Quebec, for the more public funeral in her home church, Melbourne, having been the family residence for some years.

She leaves a son, David Ernest Owen, who resides with her, a brother, D. H. Williams of this place, and two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Killingbeck of Montreal, and Mrs. E. J. Boast of Richmond, Quebec, besides many friends to mourn her loss. The flowers she loved, and tended so well and successfully, even under difficulties, are still blossoming brightly, but the hands that worked among them are still, and the gentle spirit that took such delight in their growth has passed to scenes of beauty that will not, like these, fade before the breath of Autumn.
